NITRATE BALANCER promotes nitrogen balance in 2 ways:

1. Boron enhances nitrogen utilization by improving sugar transport and metabolism, and seed and fruit development.
2. Molybdenum is essential for the initial conversion of nitrate nitrogen into nitrogen forms that contribute to higher yields rather than rank growth.

"When a very high level of plant nitrate is detected, boron and molybdenum application can help balance plant nutrition, improve fruiting, increase bulking of storage tissue, and help make plants less attractive to insects and less supportive of a developing insect population. Also, it can help protect crops from disease."
